

3 Exam Topic

Var.1 Human Rights and Humanitarian Issues, immigration

People move from one country to another for many reasons. Some people move to find better jobs or to live in a nicer place. Others move because they are escaping problems in their home country. These problems can be wars or natural disasters like earthquakes and floods.

Moving to another country is called immigration. Immigration can be hard. People often leave their family and friends behind. They must learn a new language and get used to a new culture. It can be difficult to find work or a place to live. However, many people try hard to make a better life for themselves in the new country.

Everyone has human rights. Human rights are rules that say everyone should be treated fairly and with respect. This means that people should not be hurt or treated badly. It also means they should be able to live safely and freely. Unfortunately, not everyone is treated with respect in every country. Some people face serious problems and cannot live safely. This is why some people leave their country and go to another one.

When people move to another country, they often need help. They need to find a home and a job. They might also need to see a doctor if they are sick. Humanitarian organizations help people who have escaped dangerous situations. They give clothes, food, and medicine to those in need. These organizations also help people understand their rights and support them in finding safe and respectful places to live.

Immigration and human rights are important topics. It's vital to understand that everyone should be treated fairly. We can all help each other by being kind and understanding. This way, everyone can have a safer and better life.

Let's Answer the Following Questions!

1. Why do some people move from one country to another?
2. What is immigration and why can it be hard for people?
3. What are human rights and what do they say about how people should be treated?
4. Why do some people leave their country and go to another one?
5. What kind of help do people often need when they move to another country?
6. How do humanitarian organizations assist people who have escaped dangerous situations?
7. Why are immigration and human rights important?

Var.2 Human Rights and Humanitarian Issues, terrorism and racism

Everyone has rights. These are called human rights. Human rights help people live safely and happily. For example, everyone has the right to go to school, speak their language, and practice their religion. It is very important to respect each other's rights. When people do not respect rights, there can be problems.

Terrorism is when people use violence to scare other people. Terrorists want to change the way a country works. They are dangerous and hurt people. This is not good. Terrorism is unfair and against human rights. People work together to stop terrorism. Police, governments, and communities try to keep everyone safe. It is important to talk about our problems and find solutions without violence.

Racism is another big problem. Racism is when someone thinks they are better than others because of skin color or where they are from. This is not true. Everyone should be treated the same. Racism can hurt people's feelings and cause them harm. We should all be kind to each other and remember that we are all the same inside.

We can all help stop racism and terrorism. We can learn more about each other and listen to different stories. We should stand up for people who are treated unfairly. It is good to talk to friends, family, and teachers about these problems.

When we work together, we can make a better world. We can have peace and happiness for everyone. Let's promise to respect each other's rights and be kind to everyone we meet. In this way, we can help make the world a better place for all of us.

Let's Answer the Following Questions!

1. What are human rights and why are they important?
2. What is terrorism, and why is it considered unfair and against human rights?
3. How do people work together to stop terrorism?
4. What is racism, and why is it harmful?
5. How can we help stop racism and terrorism according to the text?
6. Why is it important to talk about our problems and find solutions without violence?
7. What can we achieve by working together and respecting each other's rights?